

Job #64194

Professor or Associate Professor in Communication Arts and Sciences - Rhetoric

The Department of Communication Arts and Sciences at The Pennsylvania State University seeks to hire a tenure-track professor or associate professor to start August 2017 whose scholarship emphasizes rhetorical theory, criticism, history, or related interests. The successful applicant will have a demonstrated record of scholarly achievement, be well grounded in the discipline, complement and strengthen core interests of faculty in the department, and be willing to collaborate with the broader university community, including the Center for Democratic Deliberation and the McCourtney Institute for Democracy.

Candidates should provide clear evidence of scholarly and teaching excellence, and service to the discipline. In addition to conducting research and teaching undergraduate and graduate courses, responsibilities include course development in the area of specialty, supervision of theses and dissertations, and involvement in other departmental activities. Additional considerations in reviewing candidates include interest in grant-based research, the desire to engage in interdisciplinary research, and an appreciation for working alongside diverse colleagues in both the humanities and the social sciences.

Applications must include a letter of application describing research, teaching, and any graduate mentoring experience, along with a CV, representative publications, a brief teaching portfolio, and the names of three references who may be contacted to provide letters of recommendation. Inquiries may be sent to Professor Stephen H. Browne, chair of the search committee, at sxb17@psu.edu. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Apply to <https://psu.jobs/job/64194>
